

Contracts for the Sale of Goods: A Comparison of the Domestic and International Law

This is an in-depth practical guide for attorneys involved in the sale or purchase of goods in the international market. The UN Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (CISG), the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC), and the UNIDROIT Principle of International Commercial Law (PIC) were designed to implement uniformity in the law of sales and reflect modern commercial practice, yet there are substantial differences among them. Contracts for the Sale of Goods delivers a detailed analysis and comparison of the substantive law for the sale of goods in domestic and international transactions under the three regimes. Contracts for the Sale of Goods provides you with all relevant materials in one source, with the text following the structure of the Convention for clarity and convenience. Access the Incoterms 2000, the complete texts of Article Two and the PIC, and a list of parties to the CISG. Benefit from the invaluable concordance index that enables readers to cross-reference the relevant provisions of the CISG to the PIC and UCC.
