Who Shot First?: Depictions of Children in Westerns from '50s to Today

From George Stevens SHANE (1953) to James Mangolds revision of 3:10 TO YUMA (2007) Who Shot First? closely observes the role of children within Westerns in an attempt to better understand their larger role within society. Through comparisons of remakes Who Shot First? decipheres between societys portrayal of how a child should act and the identity of the character in question. Spanning over 50 years, this research shows how the role of children has evolved not only in Westerns but also in society from mostly ignored into a multi-billion dollar industry.

No stencils or patterns are ever used. Every birdhouse is treated with several coats of high quality exterior varnish for protection from the elements and to ensure colors will stay bright throughout the seasons. Birds love gourds for nesting and will often return to the same one year after year. When nesting season ends, the gourd's usefulness doesn't end. Birds will continue to use them as shelter from weather and for protection from predators.
